"Meet and Confer" Definition and Rationale

Since the time the Board of Regents began considering rescinding the Board's policy on collective bargaining, the term "meet and confer" has been utilized to describe the manner in which the College would interact with employee groups, such as New Mexico Federation of Education Employees (NMFEE), and College employees once collective bargaining was no longer applicable. Discussion with the NMFEE and college employees has revealed a wide variety of interpretations of the meaning of this term. In order to clarify this situation for all parties, meet and confer will have the following meaning in the context of its use at Northern New Mexico Community College:

1. Open dialogue with all employees is encouraged. Employees may speak for themselves or they may choose to have an organized group speak on their behalf. No employee or group shall have an elevated status over other employees or other employee groups.
2. The President or other administrative staff may meet with employees and/or employee groups in an open setting on a periodic basis, as determined necessary by the President. At such meetings, participants may speak out about their concerns and make recommendations on how the College could take action to address those concerns. Participants may also present their concerns in writing at, or before such meetings.
3. The President will determine what, if any, action will be taken regarding any issue raised in such meetings. Whatever action may be taken by the College may be formalized by adoption of policy or resolution by the Board of Regents but shall not result in a written agreement or negotiated contract with an organized group.

Adopted by unanimous vote of a quorum of the Board of Regents of Northern New Mexico Community College at its duly-called regular meeting of August 25, 1999.
