

HUM 1105 SYLLABUS

Course Number Course Name	HUM 1105 Humanities and the Southwest
Credit Value (Breakdown of theory and lab credits)	3 Theory
Catalog Course Description	This course emphasizes local and regional history, anthropology, ecology, art and folklore as a familiar, verifiable bridge into the universe of human experience; local solutions of universal human problems; the human place in the natural and cultural environment of the Southwest; the human capacity for expression, creativity, and the nature and transmission of knowledge. Involvement is primarily based on personal investigative assignments. Prerequisite: ENG 109N. (3, 3T+0S)
Student Learning Outcomes/Objectives /Competencies of the Course	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Provide the student with general information on the human geography of the U.S. Southwest. • To memorize and track people, places and events in U.S. Southwest and in world history that shaped U.S. Southwest's history. • To define the U.S. Southwest as a vernacular region using its physical and cultural geography and differentiate it from the political definition of states of U.S. Southwest. • Employ foundational theoretical and conceptual frameworks to interpret myths and documented facts as they pertain to U.S. Southwest's historical legacy. • How to find and interpret history through archival documents, maps and audio-visual sources. • Learn the historical origins of U.S. Southwest, and understanding the cultural and racial identities formed therein. • Learn about the industrialization and militarization of the U.S. Southwest.
College-Wide Student Learning Outcomes	The Student Learning objectives will align with Cultural Competence .

